Whether an avid diver, thrill seeker or history buff, Curaçao will not disappoint. The people of the Netherlands established a trading settlement at a fine natural harbor on the Caribbean island of Curaçao in 1634. The town developed continuously over the following centuries. Today, the modern town of Willemstad is Curaçao's capital and consists of several distinct historic districts whose architecture reflects not only European urban-planning concepts but also styles from the Netherlands and from the Spanish and Portuguese colonial towns with which Willemstad engaged in trade. If the water is calling, discover countless secluded white-sand beaches and some of the best snorkeling and diving in the Caribbean.

Top highlights include a visit to Fort Amsterdam, the authentic Blue Curacao liquor factory, Sharloo, a UNESCO Heritage Site and more! Have your camera ready for that perfect photo from the Floating Market, famous for being one of the island's most picturesque sights where the merchants sell their fresh produce and fish from their boats.
